Great success is already assured for the grand concert which is in store for us next Monday evening. There has been a large advance sale of tickets, and no doubt Odeon Hall will be filled to the doors. We hear of many large teams that are coming from surrounding towns, and they will have the full moon to go home by, and will listen to the finest musical treat ever given in Bethel. We hope none of our people will be late in securing their tickets in advance.

The oldest child of Mrs. Dana Morrill had the misfortune, last week, to break her leg just above the ankle. The children at the Flat district school, which the girl attended, were dismissed just as one of the teams hauling piling was passing. Our Bethel friends will all remember with pleasure, the "Royal Entertainers" Gorton and Smith, who were in Bethel some four years ago and who were received with such marked favor and appreciation, and all who remember them will be pleased to learn that they are to return and give two entertainments the last of July, under the auspices of the Volunteer Hose Company. We predict that they will have a crowded house. See if we are right.

We regret very much being obliged to report that Dr. J. A. Morton has had a severe attack of heart trouble, and has been confined to his bed for the past two days. The doctor has been confined to his house a large portion of the time for the past five years, but he has borne his sickness with remarkable patience and courage. A large circle of friends will learn with much sadness that he is feeling so poorly at this time.

B. A. Barker and Harry Hastings went to Upton last Friday, to play for a ball at Abbott's Hall. A large crowd was present and a fine time enjoyed, especially by the summer guests of whom there were many present. Saturday evening on the boys' return, they stopped at North Newry to play for a dance held in Eames Hall. Here they had the pleasure of playing with Mr. J. F. Welch of the Alpha Orchestra of Boston, who chanced to be in that locality on a fishing trip. These young men are becoming quite popular musicians and their services are in great demand, as evidenced by the fact that they had three opportunities to play for dances the Fourth.

Echoes from the Fourteenth Annual Convention of the Oxford County W. C. T. U.

"All roads lead to Rome" is a familiar saying, but Tuesday morning June 18, the White Ribboners of Oxford County were seen wending their way to the picturesque little village of Buckfield, some by train while others preferred a carriage ride over the hills of old Oxford. Nature had adorned this pretty little village in a beautiful dress of green and she seemed all smiles and added to the welcome so heartily given by the ladies of the Buckfield Union as their visitors arrived.

The time had come for the summing up of the year's work and forming plans for the future. The M. E. church had been tastefully decorated with cut flowers and potted plants. The devotional service was conducted by Mrs. Nellie Burger of Missouri, and was uplifting and helpful. At its close the president, Mrs. Chapman, took the chair and declared the Convention opened for business. The roll-call by the corresponding secretary, appointments of committees, and report of corresponding secretary, received attention first, then Mrs. Clara Withington in behalf of the Buckfield Union, and Miss Maria Irish in behalf of the visitors responded in well chosen words.

One pleasing feature of that morning session, was the introduction of the president and delegates from the Rumford Falls Union, which had just been organized by Mrs. Burger. Noon tide prayer and adjournment finished the program of the forenoon. The words of hospitality of the ladies was put to a practical test as we were invited to their homes, and their words proved only a shadow of the real hospitality awaiting their guests.

After the devotional service and usual routine of business, the president delivered her address. It was not so much a review of the work of the past year as a pointing out of facts as they now exist, and warning signal of approaching danger from insidious foes. The facts as stated were alarming and should arouse each one to double vigilance and effort.

West Paris Union kindly furnished a very pleasing number upon the program, a vocal solo by Mrs. Anna White with Miss Lottie Tuell organist, and Miss Jennie Brown violinist. The Parliamentary drill, conducted by Mrs. Burger, offered much amusement and was very practical. Mrs. Elizabeth Morton gave a paper on "How can Women best Promote the Cause of Temperance," and Miss Jennie Brown presented a paper on "Woman's Influence in Political Legislation." Mrs. Clifford of Hiram gave a paper on "Purity," and each one pointed clearly to the individual responsibility for the right home life, the best of society life, and the truest citizenship.

After the rich intellectual feast of the day, one wondered what could be left for the second day, but the talent of the ladies of Oxford County is inexhaustible and the interest was unabated through the entire session.

The Departmental work was reported and gave encouraging results. The committee on credentials reported six presidents from the eight Unions represented present with an unusual large number of delegates and visitors present.

With a new Union of forty-one members at Rumford Falls; an addition of eighty new members at Norway, with a fair percentage of gain in other Unions, the Convention had reason to congratulate itself and take courage. The membership has more than doubled during the year.

The evening session is always one to be pleasantly anticipated, the business of the day is laid aside for the address. This year with Mrs. Burger as lecturer realization far exceeded anticipation. Rarely has a speaker such personal charms and so much magnetic power. For an hour and a half she held the audience spell-bound; subject, "And who is my Brother?" The exercises by the Loyal Temperance Legion were very interesting, and the singing of the County song, written by Miss Isabel Shirley, was inspiring. The large audience testified to its appreciation by a generous contribution.

Wednesday morning after the opening exercises, the election of officers took place with the following result:

Pres.—Mrs. Martha B. Chapman, Bethel.
Vice Presidents at Large—Eastern District—Mrs. E. A. G. Stickney, East Brownfield.
Western District—Mrs. Elizabeth Morton, South Paris.

Cor. Sec.—Mrs. C. P. Barnes, Norway.
Rec. Sec.—Mrs. Emma W. Chandler, Bethel.

Treas.—Mrs. Fannie Y. Clifford, Hiram.

Superintendents of Departments were appointed which was followed by a fine paper by Mrs. C. P. Barnes of Norway, "Obedience." Every mother would have been helped by listening to this. Mrs. Andrews' paper on "Childless Homes," was worthy of consideration.

The afternoon session was given up to unfinished business, introduction of visitors, who gave words of sympathy and encouragement, and Mrs. Burger gave a recital in her charming manner. Mrs. Decoster gave a paper on "Intemperate Mothers," and pointed out clearly many dangers too often overlooked—pre-natal influences, and unfitness of the overworked nervous mother to give of her best self to the children under her care.

The committee on resolutions reported the following:

Resolved: Whereas, we recognize that every good and perfect gift comes from our Father in Heaven, we will continue to thank Him for guidance in the past and go forward with increased courage and faithfulness, to the various departments of our work, looking unto Him always from whence cometh our help.

Resolved: That we thank the Local Union of Buckfield, for their hearty welcome and generous hospitality.

Resolved: That the Convention extend its thanks to the M. E. Society for the use of their church, and also to the committee on decoration, the Portland and Rumford Falls and Grand Trunk Railways, and the papers of Oxford County, which so kindly report notices and all other temperance writings.

Resolved: That we thank Mr. Davis of Bethel, for carrying boxes, free of charge, to the lumbermen.

Resolved: That we thank Mrs. Burger for her presence at this Convention, and we ask her to accept our most cordial appreciation for her helpful and inspiring words.

Mrs. R. A. Rich, Mrs. F. P. Withington, } Com.
Mrs. J. D. Graham.

Thus closed the Convention of 1901 with much to encourage, yet much to incite to more vigilant earnest effort, and a pleasant memory of the kind hospitality of Buckfield ladies went with the White Ribboners to their homes.

CONTAGIOUS DISEASES.

How to Proceed to Prevent Spreading the Malady.

In caring for any contagious disease at home there are certain precautions to be observed by the nurse for her own safety as well as the spread of the disease. Free ventilation is one of the most important items. The better the ventilation the less the chance of contagion by diluting the air. To insure this take a board about a foot wide and the length of the window and slip it under the window opened to admit it. This provides a constant current of fresh air through the middle opening between the two sashes and without danger of drafts. Then by opening the window from the top a short distance several times an hour the room is kept thoroughly aired.

Prolonged contact with the patient should be avoided, and no food or fruit that has been in the sickroom should be eaten by any but the patient. The person filling the office of nurse should never eat without previous and thorough washing of the face and hands. Ordinary soap and water cleanliness is not enough. This must be supplemented by some disinfecting preparation, preferably a solution of 1 to 2,000 corrosive sublimate.

For the prevention of contagion to others a strict quarantine should be established. An upper room should be used if possible, and the furniture should be as severely simple as is consistent with the comfort of the patient. If there is a prospect of long illness, two small cots will prove a great convenience. By placing them close together it is easy to move the patient from one to another when changing the bedding and also permits each to be thoroughly aired each day.

Preferably the floor should be bare, with two or three light rugs that can be cleansed when the quarantine is removed. All draperies of woolen should be dispensed with, likewise pictures, books or any upholstered furniture, or bric-a-brac that will not stand disinfecting. In severe cases an excellent precaution for the safety of the rest of the house is to hang a sheet portiere before the door or the sickroom and frequently saturate it with diluted carbolic acid, so that whenever it is necessary to open the door the air passing out of the room is purified before reaching the halls. The nurse should also be provided with several loose cotton gowns to wear in the sickroom, changing them if permitted to go into other parts of the house.

Nothing must go out of the sickroom until disinfected. The dishes used must be thoroughly scalded before sending the tray out of the room. At the end of the disease the room and its contents, including both nurse and patient, must be thoroughly disinfected.

How to Make Fish Hash.

Take equal parts of cold flaked fish and cold boiled potatoes finely chopped. Season highly with salt and pepper. Fry several slices of salt pork. Remove the scraps, put the fish and potatoes in the hot fat, stir until well heated, then let cook until a golden brown on the underside. Fold in half and turn out on a hot platter. Garnish with parsley.

How to Hang Pictures.

Courtesy to the natural inclination, dark, heavily shaded pictures should not always hang in the strongest light, but should in some cases seek a sheltered position, away from the glare of the windows. Near the light may hang pictures in fainter tints, the subdued water colors, the blue engravings whose best points need illumination. Just as in a well planned room the dark color is found in the carpet and melts from that through the shades of the curtains and furniture to the lightest nuance in the wall, so the lower pictures should be more somber in hue than the upper and should lead the eye unconsciously from the deepest tone to the highest light.

How to Make Sandwich Butter.

In making butters of various kinds for sandwiches first rub the butter to a cream; then blend with it the flavor wanted. Caviare, anchovy, sardine, cheese, lobster, parsley, chives, cress, chutney, chill and horse radish are all used.

How to Cure Hiccoughs.

While hiccough is not often attended with serious results, it is sufficiently annoying to make it worth while to know some of the simpler and more effectual remedies within reach of non-professionals. Holding the breath for 15 or 20 seconds is recommended in case of light attacks. In graver cases a quick acting emetic may be used or hot water may be applied on the back of the neck. The rapid swallowing of small pieces of ice, it is said, will sometimes stop a violent fit of hiccoughs.

How to Wipe a Wet Silk Hat.

Wipe it as dry as possible with a silk handkerchief, then apply a soft brush. Should any portion of the nap be found to stick together, damp slightly with a sponge moistened with vinegar and brush before a fire till quite dry.

How to Prepare Sportsman's Beef.

Take a large round of beef and rub it well with four ounces of saltpeter and once ounce of allspice. Let it stand 24 hours; then rub it in common salt. Put it aside for 12 days, turning it twice a day; then put it in a pan with four pounds of suet above it and four below it, cover it with a thick crust of flour and water to keep in the juices and bake in a moderate oven six hours. It will keep two months.

How to Mend Gloves.

Gloves should never be mended with silk thread. When a seam in a glove starts, sew it with cotton thread to match the glove in shade.

INCUBATORS AND INSURANCE

Some Facts Which Will Be of Interest to Many Poultrymen.

To get as full a statement as possible of the attitude of the insurance companies toward incubator risks the writer called on the agent through whom he places his own insurance and through his courtesy was able to get interviews with a number of the leading insurance men of Boston and statements from them of the position of the insurance companies in the matter.

None of the companies cares to write policies covering dwelling, houses or barns or other outbuildings if incubators are run in them.

Some companies give special permits to run incubators in cases where investigation as to the conditions and the agent's report as to the party insuring satisfy them that the risk is relatively slight, but these permits, as a rule, are granted as business favors to good customers. They are exceptions, not to be taken as rules or precedents.

A few companies make special rates for property where incubators are operated, these rates being in the only case where we could get the figures two times the usual rates for protected (by fire department) property and two and one-half times the usual rates for unprotected property. The only ones, however, we could learn of which do this are the Worcester (Mass.) and Portland (Me.) boards of underwriters. The insurance companies generally regard incubators as more objectionable than oil stoves, because the latter are not kept constantly burning and are rarely left unattended when in use, so that while many fires do originate from oil stoves such fires are generally observed at the very start, and the average loss from fires originating this way is light.

Kerosene lamps left burning at night they object to, but regard as less dangerous than incubators for two reasons—first, because such lamps are not burned for 24 hours without trimming or cleaning, as incubator lamps are, but as a rule are trimmed and cleaned after having been burned, at most, 10 or 12 hours; second, because the lamp is in a room where some one sleeps or a room adjoining an occupied room, and thus in case of fire from the fire is likely to be quickly detected, while, with an incubator in the cellar and usually no one on the first floor of the house, fire starting from an incubator easily gains strong headway before being detected.

In a way the objections of the insurance companies to incubators are theoretical, for none of them are able to give statistics showing that facts will support their theories. Of course having generally refused to accept risks where incubators were concerned their books will not reveal anything as to losses traceable to that cause. As we told these gentlemen, we think it very doubtful whether they could prove that their objections to incubators were well founded. We hear of very few cases of loss to poultrymen through fires originating from incubators, while we do hear of quite a number of conflagrations, not often very large, starting from lamp brooders.

As the matter stands now, insurance where there are incubators seems to be principally a question of particular persons and circumstances, and even while the boards mentioned do accept incubator risks at special rates it does not appear that they do so indiscriminately. The opinion of the insurance men seemed to be that if a man could not induce agents who knew him and with whom he was doing business to write his insurance on property where an incubator was operated there would be little prospect of his being able to place his insurance elsewhere. Thus it becomes principally a question of satisfying a local agent that in any particular case the conditions reduce the supposed risk enough to justify the insurance company in accepting it, so that when you get at the bottom of the matter it depends very much on the agents and the would be insured keeping cool and being reasonable.

We think that the insurance companies might well adopt a more liberal policy in this matter. But after going over the ground pretty carefully it seems to us that this is not likely to come except as it develops from present conditions, which, we believe, are much more favorable than those of some years ago. As "exceptions" to the rule not to accept risks where incubators are operated become more numerous, we think the companies will find that their theories as to the probabilities of losses from fires originating from incubators have unduly magnified the risks and will in time come to consider an incubator properly protected as adding but little to the risk.—Farm Poultry.

The Brine Test.

According to Siebel a new laid egg placed in a vessel of brine made in the proportion of two ounces of salt to one pint of water will at once sink to the bottom. An egg one day old will sink below the surface, but not to the bottom, while one three days old will swim just immersed in the liquid. If more than three days old, the egg will float on the surface, the amount of shell exposed increasing with age, and if two weeks old only a little of the shell will dip in the liquid.

Cabbage For Ducks.

In feeding ducks cabbage Waldo F. Brown says he holds the plant in his left hand, head downward, and slashes it in slices with a corn cutter. He says he can cut a head fine in less time than it takes to write this sentence. Unmercantable heads, those that burst and loose heads, are just as good for the poultry as any, and if cabbage is grown for market there will be enough of these to feed a large number of fowls.

A Good Cough Medicine.

It speaks well for Chamberlain's Cough Remedy when druggists use it in their own families in preference to any other. "I have sold Chamberlain's Cough Remedy for the past five years with complete satisfaction to myself and customers," says Druggist J. Goldsmith, Van Etten, N. Y. "I have always used it in my own family both for ordinary coughs and colds and for the cough following lagrippe, and find it very efficacious."

For sale by G. R. Wiley, Bethel; A. S. Bean, W. Bethel; W. H. Crockett, Locke Mills; J. W. Bennett, Gilead; A. R. Small & Son, Bryant Pond.

When Your Birds Are Sick.

"When a bird becomes sick," sensibly advises The Mirror and Farmer, "it should be placed in a coop by itself, or a number may be put together so as to permit of holding them without frightening all of the others. If the bird refuses to eat, it indicates that it is a serious case, but food should not be forced upon them other than to give them something nourishing. A tablespoonful of warm milk, with two drops of brandy, will often invigorate a sick bird and induce it to eat, and for that purpose oatmeal boiled in milk to a thick consistency is excellent. A little finely chopped meat is also beneficial, but do not force too much at a time upon them."

Six Million Boxes a Year.

Unavoidable.

"Why do you wander aimlessly from place to place?" inquired the philanthropist.

"Well," answered Meandering Mike, "eight hours' sleep a day is enough for anybody. An we've got to do something 'til' de other 16 hours, ain't we?"—Washington Star.

The House Hunter.

She rises up at the early dawn. She puts her street apparel on. She bolsters her breakfast, washes away And hunteth up houses the living day.

She returneth home, worn out and vexed. 'Tis the same next day, and the next and next. So at last she putteth away her hat And decideth to live in the same old flat. —Chicago Tribune.

Jacobus—Chapman.

At the magnificently located home of Mr. and Mrs. William Chalmers Chapman was solemnized last Wednesday, at high noon, the marriage of their daughter, Marion Elise, to Mr. Geo. Jacobus of Garden City, N. Y., by Rev. Arthur Varley of Bethel. The day was all that could be desired and the splendid views of the mountains and hills on every side without, and abundance of choicest flowers and evergreens within, only added to the pleasure of the occasion. The ceremony was performed under a bower of roses and evergreens and the delicious perfume of the entwined fresh honey-louise blossoms filled the rooms and hall way. The maid of honor, a sister of the bride, Miss Cecile F. Chapman, was dressed in pink. The bridesmaids, dressed in white over pink were Miss Lotta Proctor of Waterville, Miss Alice Barker, Miss E. Louise Jacobus of Springfield, Mass., Miss Margaret G. Thurston of Portland, and Miss Christine L. Chapman. The best man was Mr. Hannibal Hamlin Chapman, brother of the bride. The ushers were Mr. E. P. Fay of Springfield, Mass., Mr. Emory H. Sykes of Auburn, Mr. Granville A. Chapman, Mr. C. S. Jacobus of Springfield, Mass., and Mr. C. A. Kimball of Littleton, Mass., a Yale classmate of the groom. The wedding march of Mendelssohn was played as they passed from the upper hall way. The bride was given away by her father and the Episcopal service with ring was used. The groom's present to the bride was a sun-burst pin of pearls around a diamond center. The bride's presents to the maids were four leaf clover pins, while the ushers received from the groom scarf pins with gold knot and pearl center. Only relations and most intimate friends were present. But the deep interest of a large circle of acquaintances from near and far was clearly manifested by the large number of elegant and varied presents that lent additional charm and beauty.

After a wedding trip of several weeks and a vacation sojourn at the sea-shore, their future home will be in their newly built residence at Garden City, N. Y.

DAY OF HAPPY MEMORIES.

Silver Wedding Anniversary of Mr. and Mrs. C. B. Foster.

The friends of Mr. and Mrs. C. B. Foster of 22 Church street gave them a most pleasant surprise party last Saturday evening. It was the twenty-fifth anniversary of the marriage of Mr. and Mrs. Foster and their friends determined to make it one of pleasant remembrance to them.

At about 8:30 the company met in the vestry of the Universalist church, over 70 in all. They then marched to the residence of the Fosters on Church street and found Mrs. Foster alone. Mr. Foster having gone out for a while. A searching party was sent after him and soon returned with the host. The company meanwhile had adjourned to Glendon hall.

The hall was prettily decorated with snow balls. On Mr. Foster's arrival Rev. G. G. Hamilton, pastor of the Universalist church, called Mr. and Mrs. Foster to the center of the hall and in behalf of their friends presented them with a handsome silver service.

Mr. Foster, although completely surprised, responded in a happy manner. During the evening Leavitt's orchestra rendered several selections and Raymond Foster, aged 11, son of Mr. Foster, played with them on the violin. Mrs. H. D. Lee of Somerville sang several selections, and then dancing was indulged in until midnight.

The committee in charge of the affair was Mrs. Baldrige of Somerville and Mrs. G. B. Allen of Everett.—Everett Republican.

Young Citizens' Loyal League.

The presentation of the work of reform as carried on by the Young Citizens' Loyal League, as given last Sunday morning by Rev. Judson W. Shaw, was one of the most interesting addresses to which we have listened for a long time. The delineation of the marked progress in society during the past century, with some of the grave perils which have arisen from our tendency, in intellectual culture and the lack of character building education, was clean-cut and pointedly applied. The illustrations used were vivid and strikingly put, while the causes for anxiety on the part of our thoughtful citizens and reform workers were presented in an able and impressive manner.

The methods used by the society in carrying on this work, which is largely done through the introduction of carefully selected literature on Duties in Citizenship, elevating reading in Nature Study, books on Character Building and Humane work, into our schools, the homes, and the Sabbath school and other libraries, with the attending results, were presented in such a way as to make a strong impression upon the audience. This was shown by the generous contribution made by those present who were glad to add their mites to aid so noble a work.

We regret that the work of the society could not have been presented at a more favorable time, and trust that many who were absent on account of unfavorable weather, may yet come in touch with the work and add their contributions to help sustain the work of training child life to higher ideas in loyal citizenship. If the means used by this society as outlined by Mr. Shaw, could be generously endorsed and applied, "We should have great hopes of the future of American society," and of the aggressive work of the Church as well as of the State.

WILL EFFECT A CURE

Marshall, Mich., April 5, 1900
Sanitarium City Electrical Co.:
Gentlemen—Having had a very serious illness with inflammatory rheumatism for nearly a year past, and having received no benefit from the many medicines I had used, and on the persuasion of a friend who had used one of your belts for rheumatism, I purchased one of your belts and have worn it for the past two months, from which I have received more benefit and relief than at any previous time, and feel confident that the continued use will wholly cure me in a short time.

How to Make Egg Soup.

Stir a teaspoonful of beef extract into one quart of boiling water; add a grated onion, an eighth of a teaspoonful of celery seed or a little celery chopped, half a teaspoonful of salt and a salt-spoonful of pepper; stir constantly until it reaches the boiling point; strain through a fine sieve and pour it while hot into the well beaten yolks of two eggs. Add four tablespoonfuls of carefully hulled rice and serve very hot.—Ladies' Home Journal.

How to Make Epicurean Butter.

Epicurean butter is served with grilled meats, etc. To make it put two tablespoonfuls of fresh butter in a small bowl and work into it thoroughly with the point of a silver knife a mixture of cayenne, mixed herb powder, minced parsley, lemon juice and mushroom powder. When this is accomplished, set it on the ice and as soon as solid stamp it into dainty pats. Dot these about the meat in serving.

How to Make Spanish Omelet.

Put a tablespoonful of butter into an omelet pan. When melted, add one sliced onion and cook until the onion is soft, but not brown. Beat four eggs until they are well mixed, add four tablespoonfuls of water and a dash of cayenne. Pour this into the pan with the butter and onion; shake; lift one side, drain the soft portion underneath. Dust with salt. Fold and serve on a hot plate.

How to Make Sour Milk Doughnuts.
Rub a cup of butter into two cups of sugar, add four beaten eggs, a cup of sour milk, a teaspoonful of soda dissolved in a little boiling water, a teaspoonful each of nutmeg and cinnamon and enough flour to make a dough that can be rolled out. Roll out and cut into shapes. Fry in deep, boiling lard.

How to Clean Cane Chairs.
To clean cane chairs wash the cane on the underside with salt and water; then rub the upper surface with a cut lemon dropped in salt and then with plain lemon juice. Dry in the open air if possible, but safe from the rays of the sun.

How to Keep Cut Flowers.
A Japanese plan by which cut flowers may be made to last an abnormally long time is to turn the ends of the stems with a piece of wood—not with a match, be it observed, for the sulphur would be injurious to the flowers.

How to Stiffen Laces.
To stiffen laces use corn flour in preference to ordinary starch. It makes them firm and does not detract from their lacy appearance.

How to Keep Fish White.
Dip smelts or fish of any sort in lemon juice when you wish to keep the flesh white.

To Cure a Cold in One Day
Take Laxative Bromo Quinine Tablets. All druggists refund the money if it fails to cure. E. W. Grove's signature is on each box 25c. Aug 22yl

Mr. W. S. Whedon, Cashier of the First National Bank of Winterset, Iowa, in a recent letter gives some experience with a carpenter in his employ, that will be of value to other mechanics. He says: "I had a carpenter working for me who was obliged to stop work for several days on account of being troubled with diarrhoea. I mentioned to him that I had been similarly troubled and that Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy had cured me. He bought a bottle of it from the druggist here and informed me that one dose cured him, and he is again at his work."

For sale by G. R. Wiley, Bethel; A. S. Bean, W. Bethel; W. H. Crockett, Locke Mills; J. W. Bennett, Gilead; A. R. Small & Son, Bryant Pond.

shoes and thus leave our own footprints for future help to the coming classes. The hat they considered large! but the first time we tried its proportions, we found that our heads had entirely outgrown it. I suppose they judged our capacity by their own, but by actual measurement, our heads at the beginning of our Junior year
out measured theirs on Commencement day.

We, as a class, have agreed to treat the Junior class with more consideration and generosity than that with which we were treated.
We have purchased this pair of shoes for you; they are entirely new, you have their future entirely in your own hands, or rather—feet.
See to it that they do not become worn at the sole or run down at the heel. They will assist you greatly in supporting your tiny,
tottering feet over many rough paths. I tried hard to find a hat to fit your heads as they appear in your own eyes; it was utterly impossible; and upon more mature thought, I feel glad that I could not, for, of course, you'll want to wear it on Commencement day—1902, and I'm sure, then, that this one will be a perfect fit.

Class Prophecy.

ETHEL V. SANBORN.

It was a bright, still day in the late summer. The air was cool and pleasant, and everything seemed resting under a delightful,
lazy calm, when I made my way to the pond, and loosening the boat from its moorings, rowed slowly over the quiet surface,
now and then bending to pull a fragrant lily from the cool, sparkling water.

I had gathered plenty of lilies,
and was drifting with the current,
when, under the influence of the beautiful scene before me, I seemed to lose consciousness of my surroundings, and sat dreamily thinking of the future and what it would bring forth for myself and my class-mates.

As I sat there, watching the fish
circling about in the limpid water, a beautiful picture seemed to be unrolled before my wondering eyes. It was a large hall, filled to its utmost capacity by a dense throng of people, listening in breathless silence to the magnetic words of a young reader in front of the foot-lights. Glancing at her again with renewed interest, I recognize, with a start, the well-known features of my class-mate, Ethel Farwell. Like one dreaming, I watch this wonderful scene
until a light breath of wind stirs
the calm surface and sends the waves scattering in all directions.

The picture instantly vanishes,
but as the ripples recede, a new scene takes its place. In the depths below me, I see a schoolroom filled with eager, bustling girls and boys. A young teacher presides at the desk, but one who is well qualified to hold her position,
a fact shown by the well-ordered
room and the bright, smiling faces of the pupils. She soon begins to look natural, and at last I recognize in this up-to-date young lady
before me, my class-mate, Addie Horr. After consulting the clock, whose hands point to a quarter
past three, she calls the Mental Arithmetic class, and in imagination, I hear her asking Johnny
how much two and two makes,
and hear Johnny proudly answer,
"Five!"

At this point in my reverie, a large trout darts swiftly through the water, and disturbing the quiet shadows, forms another vision altogether strange to my eyes.
This is a scene of war and carnage. The wounded and dying lie in thousands on every side, but in their midst, one figure constantly appears, soothing the dying, and cheering the living by her presence. Who is this, I wonder, wearing the red cross upon her black gown? Surely, she looks familiar!
Then there comes back to me the remembrance of the old, familiar school-room, and I rise to greet the Belle of our school and class.

But lo! the vision has vanished,
and in its place is another. This time, massive college walls appear,
and looking into one of the rooms,
I see a stern professor "laying down the law" to a class of timid young men. Upon looking closer, I see that it is a Latin class and that our school-mate, "Richie,"
with the dignity of spectacles added to his six feet, two inches, is the haughty professor. It is very pleasing to know that he has put his wonderful classical knowledge, gained at "Old Gould's," to such good use.

But I am not allowed to linger
and learn his methods, for I am led quickly over strange lands and calm seas to a small island in the Pacific, where I am amazed to see our beloved Winona and the sturdy youth, Robert, teaching the Way of Truth and Light to a crowd of wondering natives. They have followed out their early inclinations and joined hands in the bonds of wedlock; and as missionaries, they are still doing good, as they always did at school, by their sober, steadfast examples.

At this point in my vision, I become so excited that I absentmindedly move one of the oars lying idly in my hands, and thus the ripples are again disturbed.
As the waters grow still again, I see a beautiful picture of Ruth.
She has "left her happy home" in Bethel, and is singing "Pliny" before a crowded house, and rivaling Patti as a songstress. She has more than fulfilled the promise of her girlhood, and holds her audience entranced.

Edwin is represented as making his way to fame and fortune by the decorator's art. A talent which he first discovered he possessed while decorating the Odeon for Gould's Academy's Annual Prize Contest. And if he continues to increase his skill as rapidly as he has in the past few years, he will soon be qualified to decorate even the palace of a "King."

But what in this whole wide universe can that, next scene represent? What can those creatures be, rushing so madly about? Running, pushing, and jumping! Oh,
I have it! It's a Basket Ball game.
And the contestants are playing for the championship of the world.

I grow more interested as the game progresses, and cheer madly
for the winning side, for I recognize its leader. At length, the game is finished and as the smoke
of the battle clears away, I see Miss Adella strutting proudly about, wearing a bright pink and green badge, which proclaims her to be the champion player of the world. I am glad, Della, to see that you can still win your battles as easily as you always did at "Old Gould's."

As this picture fades, I see our demure little Hester, wearing a neat cap and long white apron,
flourishing a huge mixing-spoon.
She is the very picture of dignity as she asks her assistant to "see if this cake is flavored all right." Her education is of great use in her high position, for it enables her to invent high-sounding French names for the various good things which she concocts.

I see our class treasurer occupying a high position in the affairs of state. The fidelity and zeal which he ever manifested in managing the affairs of the Athletic Association and Academy Herald in his school days gave promise of greater things, and now the unanimous support of his constituents is evidence of his straight-forward business methods, as a man.

A pickerel, darting past the boat, disturbs this brilliant picture, and I see a great Art Building in Paris.
Crowds of people are grouped breathlessly about one picture which seems to be the center of attraction, congratulating the artist whose talent has reached such perfection. And indeed, it is perfection—this picture—for never before did artist display such skill
or have so favorable a subject.
Nothing less than the G. A. Football team of 1901, in practice! The renown of this champion Eleven will, I feel sure, help not a little towards making this picture famous. I wait patiently for the crowd to disperse, that I may see this celebrated artist, and half rise from my seat when I recognize the Henrietta of whom our class was so proud.

boat changes the scene, and Walter is revealed, wearing a guide's badge and having a gun slung over his shoulder. He seems to know the haunts of all the game and fish with which the forests and rivers of Bethel abound, and consequently, his services are in great demand by the sportsmen in the autumn. But it pleases me to note that he never leads a party
"Pigeon-shooting—that game is sacred—in his eye.

Effie appears holding a happy home under her loving rule. In her bright, cheery way she is still doing her best, as she always did at school, whether it was working out a Geometry problem or winning the seat of honor for good deportment.

The picture again changes and I see a crowded court-room, and can tell by the strained, tense look on every face that the prisoner at the bar is being tried in a case of life and death. Suddenly a young lawyer rises to address the jury,
and by his eloquence fast convinces
everyone of the prisoner's innocence. It is very gratifying to see that this brilliant young lawyer is Guy Davis. He has fulfilled the promise of his school-days, and shown by his deep voice and great debating powers.

The meaning of the next picture escapes me for a long time. It seems to be a whole nation, the whole world, in fact, celebrating the birthday of some famous character. But what can that have to do with the class of 1901? Surely,
all have deserved honor and glory,
and many have already won them,
but I had never dreamed of honors
like these for one of our number.
After very close attention, I understand why the picture is shown me. For the world is paying tribute to our class poetess, whose immortal "Brown Epic" will live through the ages, to be studied by each succeeding literature class as a master-piece.

But suddenly, these delightful visions are roughly disturbed, for my boat begins to rock wildly back and forth with the swelling waves,
and looking up, I see by the black,
threatening clouds, that a squall is rapidly rising. Knowing that speed alone will save me from a wetting, I grasp the oars and hurry for the shore, not soon enough, however, to wholly escape the oncoming storm. But I am filled with thoughts of the future, and feel sure that whatever paths my class-mates may tread in life, they will profit by the many lessons learned at "Old Gould's," not all of which were learned in books,
and that if they keep the class mo-
to: "Row, Not Drift," ever in mind,
and try to do their duty towards God and their fellow-men, they will be an honor to the dear, old school.

A. WORTHY SUCCESSOR.

"Something New Under the Sun."

All Doctors have tried to cure CATARRH by the use of powders, acid gases, inhalers and drugs in paste form. Their powders dry up the mucous membranes causing them to crack open and bleed. The powerful acids used in the inhalers have eaten away the same membranes that their makers have aimed to cure, while pastes and ointments cannot reach the disease. An old and experienced practitioner who has for many years made a close study and specialty of the treatment of CATARRH, has at last perfected a Treatment which when faithfully used, not only relieves at once, but permanently cures CATARRH by removing the cause, stopping the discharges, and curing all inflammation. It is the only remedy known to science that actually reaches the affected parts. This wonderful remedy is known as "SNUFFLES" the GUARANTEED CATARRH CURE and is sold at the extremely low price of One Dollar, each package containing internal and external medicine sufficient for a full month's treatment and everything necessary to perfect its use.

"SNUFFLES" is the only perfect CATARRH CURE ever made and is now recognized as the only safe and positive cure for that annoying and disgusting disease. It cures all inflammation quickly and permanently and is also wonderfully quick to relieve Hay Fever or Cold in the Head.

CATARRH when neglected often leads to CONSUMPTION—"SNUFFLES" will save you if you use it at once. It is no ordinary remedy, but a complete treatment which is positively guaranteed to cure CATARRH in any form or stage if used according to the directions which accompany each package. Don't delay but send for it at once, and write full particulars as to your condition, and you will receive special advice from the discoverer of this wonderful remedy regarding your case without cost beyond the price of "SNUFFLES" the "Guaranteed Catarrh Cure."

Send prepaid to any address in the United States or Canada, on receipt of One Dollar. Address, Dept. A 751, EDWIN B. GILES & COMPANY, 2330 and 2332 Market Street, Philadelphia.

NO MAKESHIFT.

In This Case the Work was Properly Done.

Any reader who has had backache and found relief by rubbing the back with liniments and lotions, understands that the relief obtained was but a makeshift, or the ache returns. There's a way to do it so the ache will not come back. Read how it's done.

Mr. Fred A. Wood, of 103 Thurbers avenue, Providence, R. I., messenger for the Earle and Prews Express Co., says: "In the winter of 1897 I became so enthusiastic an admirer of Doan's Kidney Pills, after they cured me of kidney trouble, I wrote to the agents unsolicited, telling them about my cure and stating that if my recommendation would help the preparation along I would be only too pleased to furnish it. It has appeared in our Providence newspapers since, and now in the month of May, 1899, I emphatically state there is not one word I wish to retract. On the other hand, I am only too pleased to re-endorse a preparation which acts so faithfully to the representations made for it as Doan's Kidney Pills."

An Important Test.

Your Life May Be Prolonged by Applying It.

Do you realize the importance of the kidneys and bladder? When diseased they make a lot of trouble—tear down the system and create gravel (stone in the bladder). Women often suffer from the "female weakness" when their trouble really lies with the kidneys and bladder. Try this test. Put some urine in a tumbler. Let it stand twenty-four hours. If there is a sediment, a cloudy or milky appearance, your kidneys are sick. If you are obliged to urinate often, especially during the night; if your urine stains linen, if you have scalding pains in passing it, if your back pains you, your bladder and kidneys are diseased; you should at once take the greatest of all kidney medicines, Dr. David Kennedy's Favorite Remedy. It has cured the most distressing cases; it will cure you.

It corrects the bad effects of beer or whiskey, will cure old and chronic cases of Rheumatism and Dyspepsia and acts rapidly yet promptly on the bowels. Favorite Remedy is sold for one dollar a bottle at all drug stores.

You may have a trial bottle of Favorite Remedy with a pamphlet of valuable medical advice sent free by mail post-paid, by sending your address to the Dr. David Kennedy Corporation, Rondout, N. Y., and mentioning this paper. The proprietors of this paper guarantee the genuineness of this liberal offer.

Leaving School.

There is no turning point in a boy's life so perilous than that where he comes plump up against the question of school or no school. Senator Beveridge, in a recent magazine article, insists that any boy can get a college education—that it is only a question of "will." He would have us think that all a boy need do is to say "I will!" and go ahead. But this is hardly sensible. It does very well to talk and write after that fashion. It serves to encourage many a boy who can, but who thinks he can't; yet we all know that the iron hand of necessity is laid on many a lad and his own "will" because absolutely impotent.

I have referred to my father before in this series of articles, and I hope I may be pardoned if I do so again. His life illustrates so much that I want to say. By dint of the hardest kind of work and the saving of every possible penny, he had enough money in hand when a boy to get him at least one term in an academy or college preparatory school some miles away from home. But scarcely had he entered on his course of study ere his father died, leaving a widow, five daughters and two sons, of which my father, then only a boy himself, was the oldest. There was no money to support the family, and father was the only one of the eight able to earn a dollar. His immediate return from the Academy and immediate employment in some money-earning position was an absolute necessity. And this necessity was not temporary; it lasted through the years of his young manhood. The door of opportunity was shut and barred against his aspirations for a school education. He had an iron "will" but here it was powerless.

So there are boys who must quit school—not necessarily quit reading and study, mind you, for a boy may in these days get a fair equivalent for a school education by well directed home instruction. The great danger lies, however, in determining whether the necessity of quitting does or does not exist; for what appears to be a necessity is really often not a necessity. It is so easy for a boy to conjure up a necessity if it meets his notion. It is not enough to create a necessity that the few dollars the boy might be earning would come in handy at home, would help clothe him better or add a little to mother's or sister's comfort, or make it easier for father. Fathers, mothers, and sisters of the right sort are willing, nay, are glad to give up something of comfort, and are pleased to sacrifice something that the boy may get an education. It speaks well for the boy that he thinks of what he might do with his money to help along at home, if this is really his motive in quitting school; but let him not conjure up out of his kindness of heart the existence of a real necessity where it does not exist. And then if he is really anxious to help out at home there are scores of ways of earning a dollar or two now and then outside of school hours. Is he taking advantage of these? Are these dollars being used in the way he is so heroically picturing to himself? And if he can't earn a dollar outside of school hours, there are many, many ways of relieving burdens at home, and making the sacrifices of the home folks easier to bear. Is he mindful of these? If not, his heart longings to be earning money to bring home are just fooling him.

Perhaps the boy has got the notion from some dyspeptic philosopher that a school education is not after all a good thing to have, and that the sooner he gets into active life the better. Well, I haven't the space to argue this question. I think it is pretty well settled that the times demand educated men, and that all things considered, the educated young man has the inside track in the race. Of course men do succeed in money-making and in other directions without it; but I notice in reading their biographies and their advice to boys, they have keenly felt the lack of school training and earnestly advise that boys do not follow their example.

There is a period pretty well marked in boys generally, where they grow restless. It is the period when they begin in the seclu-

The Duty of Mothers.

What suffering frequently results from a mother's ignorance; or more frequently from a mother's neglect to properly instruct her daughter! Tradition says "woman must suffer," and young women are so taught. There is a little truth and a great deal of exaggeration in this. If a young woman suffers severely she needs treatment, and her mother should see that she gets it.

Many mothers hesitate to take their daughters to a physician for examination; but no mother need hesitate to write freely about her daughter or herself to Mrs. Pinkham's Laboratory at Lynn, Mass., and secure from a woman the most efficient advice without charge.

Mrs. August Pfalzgraf, of South Byron, Wis., mother of the young lady whose portrait we here publish, wrote in January, 1899, saying her daughter had suffered for two years with irregular menstruation—had headache all the time, and pain in her side, feet swelled, and was generally miserable. She received an answer promptly with advice, and under date of March, 1899, the mother writes again that Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound cured her daughter of all pains and irregularity.

Nothing in the world equals Lydia E. Pinkham's great medicine for regulating woman's peculiar monthly troubles.

sion of their rooms at home to rub the upper lip and nearly crack the looking glass to find a sprouting hair. They get their first temptation to smoke and possibly fall a prey to it on a quiet. They begin to study the most effective part in the hair. They assume lordly manners at home. They take unkindly any interference with their plans. They begin to worry mother by irregular hours and uncertain whereabouts at night. They prefer other company to that of sister. Now look out for this boy. He has reached the turning point. He is, as we say of horses, "feeling his oats." He is getting ready to break loose. He is getting to old for school. Many of his companions have graduated immaturity and are earning money—a little and they are spending it too. They have a little something to jingle in their pockets—for a night or two after pay day, and he hasn't. He feels mean in consequence. "They are independent," he is "dependent." He is a boy; they are men—at least, they can act like it while their money lasts. Now he must quit school. Other boys are beating him in the race. He will earn money and be a man too. But he will not do as they do; he will bring his earnings home, keeping just enough to juggle when out with the boys, so that he need not feel stingy. How he longs to help contribute at home! Perhaps he does. Sometime he really does. But look out for this boy. Kindly, earnestly hold him. Don't scold him. He is developing—shall I say naturally?—not unnaturally. These phenomena are characteristic of boy life. It's the turning point between innocent, careless, buoyant boyhood, and earnest, self-assertive manhood. Let him pass that safely and the chances are in his favor; let him fail at this point, let him have his way, let him loose with his unformed character and mind into the world of boys, who like him, have quit school capriciously and foolishly, and the chances are all against him.—The American Boy.

OBITUARY.

Harold Wheeler Bean, aged 12 years, 9 months and 6 days, died at the home of his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Ralph W. Bean, near Littleton, Col., on Sunday, June 24. The immediate cause of his death was pneumonia. Although a week before he had had the measles which had greatly weakened him and hence the fever was harder to overcome. Harold was a bright, cheerful, energetic boy, greatly beloved at home and at school, his last thought being for others who were around him, and his death is keenly felt. The parents have the heartfelt sympathy of the community in this, their sad affliction. The interment was in the Littleton cemetery beside the dear ones gone before. The floral offerings from his schoolmates and friends were many, the casket being entirely covered. Rev. H. B. Smith of Littleton officiated.

Gone from us forever, Dear Harold, And left our home, now so dear, Away from the many who'll miss you, From the few who hold you most dear.

Why Chinese Boys Wear Earrings. The stranger in China is struck with the number of children that he sees wearing earrings. On investigation he finds that most of them are boys. As the grown boys and the men do not wear earrings, the stranger inquires why the little boys wear them. "To keep the spirits from carrying them off," says the Chinese philosopher. The stranger asks how earrings will keep the spirits from carrying the children off, and he hears this:

"The boy is the greatest blessing that heaven can send. The spirits like boy babies. It is natural that they should; everybody likes them. Very often if the boy babies are not watched closely the spirits, who are constantly around, grab him off to their home. Girl babies are not such blessings, and the spirits care nothing for them. The earrings is a feminine ornament, and the spirits know that, so the Chinese mothers have the ears of their boy babies pierced and put in huge earrings. When the spirits are around looking for boys, they will see the earrings and be fooled into thinking the boys are girls and will pass on and not trouble them."

Don't Frighten Children. It is the custom of many grown up idiots to paralyze the nervous systems of babies as follows:

The baby sits in his carriage, in a sort of philosophical daze, thinking of his misty past and his limitless future. The grown up idiot approaches on tiptoe, puts a huge, foolish face near the baby's small countenance and suddenly yells "Boo!" or makes some other foolish noise.

The baby's nervous system is damaged, and in this way the foundation is often laid for convulsions a little later.

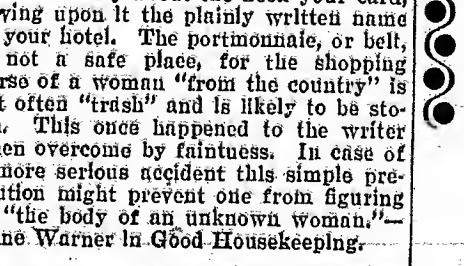

Adults should know better than to startle babies or little boys and girls in any way.

Boys who are so fond of frightening their younger brothers and sisters by standing in dark places and jumping at them should be compelled to give up the pretense.

If only parents could be made to take as good care of the inside of a young child's head as they do of the inside of a watch, much suffering would be avoided.—Chicago America.

Mme. Melba's London House. Mme Melba's house in Great Cumberland place is one of the most wonderful homes in all London. The grand salons was copied by a number of famous artists from a room in the palace of Versailles. The diva's own apartments are very lovely, and the quaint diamond mirrored and adjustable partition that divides her dressing room and bathroom was designed by herself. The bed, which is placed on a stand and fitted with a canopy, draped with priceless lace, is one on which the dauphin of France spent his last night of royal state. The toilet set in this room is of the rarest unspotted amber-tortoise shell, and each piece bears a large "M" in diamonds. That in her dressing room is of hammered gold, with a lily of the valley design in diamonds and pearls. Ewers of rarest Sevres stand in lines of solid silver gilt to correspond with the general decorative scheme of the room, and throughout the house there are countless art treasures, including some of the finest colored engravings.

For Identification. When visiting in a big city, wear fastened securely about the neck your card, having upon it the plainly written name of your hotel. The portmanteau, or belt, is not a safe place, for the shopping purse of a woman "from the country" is not "trial" and is likely to be stolen. This once happened to the writer when overcome by faintness. In case of a more serious accident this simple precaution might prevent one from figuring as "the body of an unknown woman."—Anne Warner in Good Housekeeping.

HOW TO INDUCE SLEEP.

College President's Plan For Overcoming Insomnia.

Assume an easy position, with the hands resting over the abdomen. President Hyde of Bowdoin suggests in The Outlook, discussing the matter of sleep. Take a long, slow, but easy and natural breath in such a way as gradually and gently to lift the hands outward by the action of the abdomen. At the same time slowly and gradually open the eyes so that at the end of the inspiration they are wide open and directed upward. Let the breath out easily and naturally, letting the hands fall inward as the outward pressure of the abdomen is withdrawn. At the same time let the eyes drop and the eyelids naturally fall by their own weight so that they are closed at the end of the expiration. Do all this quietly and naturally. Do not make too hard work of it. Repeat the inspiration and expiration, with opening and lifting, dropping and closing of the eyes, ten times. Then take ten breaths in the same way, allowing the eyes to remain closed. Alternate ten breaths with the opening and closing of the eyes. When the eyelids begin to feel heavy and you feel tired and sleepy, as you will very soon, go through the motions more and more easily and lazily until you merely will the motions without making any effort, or hardly any effort, to execute them. At this stage, or more likely in one of the intervals of breathing without any motion of the eyes, you will fall asleep. Nervous persons will have some difficulty at first in the gradual opening and closing of the eyes. They will tend to fly open and then snap together; but, as putting salt in a dove's tail is a sure rule for catching the dove, so this gradual and easy opening and closing of the eyes in rhythm, with quiet, natural breathing, once secured, are almost equivalent to dropping off to sleep. This rule induces the respiration that is characteristic of normal sleep. It tries the set of muscles, the thing of which is one of the favorite devices for producing hypnosis. It produces and calls attention to certain sensations in the eyes and eyelids which are the normal precursors of sleep. Finally persons who have had difficulty in going to sleep report that this method puts them to sleep and puts them back again when they wake up too soon.

How to Remove a Tight Ring.

To remove a tight ring take a needle, flat in the eye, and thread it under the ring but not too coarse thread. Then very carefully pass the head of the needle under the ring in the direction of the wrist. By soaping the needle beforehand you facilitate matters. Having done this, you pull down a few inches of the thread and withdraw the empty needle. Then wrap the long end of the thread round the finger toward the nail and take the short end and unwind it. The thread, pressing against the ring, gradually works it off, no matter how tight it may be.

How to Make Frozen Souffle.

Soak one-half box of gelatin in one-half cupful of cold water. To one pint of any fruit juice allow about one pint of sugar. Beat four egg yolks till creamy, add half the sugar, then add the fruit juice and remaining sugar.

Strain it into a pan set in water. Dissolve the gelatin over the fire and strain it into the mixture. Stir constantly, and as it begins to thicken add one pint of cream that has been whipped. Turn it into a mold and pack in ice and salt for two hours.

How to Make Rhubarb Jelly.

Skin and cut one pound of rhubarb in small pieces. Put into a saucepan with one cup of sugar and a small piece of fresh ginger root and cook slowly until soft, but not broken. Soak two tablespoonfuls of granulated gelatin in one-half cup of cold water until soft; then strain into the hot rhubarb, with two tablespoonfuls of lemon juice. Mold, chill and serve with a garnish of whipped cream.

How to Make Eyelashes Grow.

Red vaseline, 2 ounces; tincture cantharides, one-eighth ounce; oil of lavender, oil of rosemary, 15 drops each. Apply to the eyebrows with a tiny toothbrush once a day until the growth is sufficiently stimulated, then less often. This ointment may be used for the eyelashes also. In this case it should be very carefully applied. It will inflame the eyes, as any oil will if it gets into them.

How to Make Beet Salad.

Beet salad is especially good when tender new beets are used. Boil the beets and when cold cut them into dice. Cover them with tartare sauce made as follows: Chop very fine a small piece of onion, a sprig of parsley and one or two pickles, depending upon their size. Add to these a cupful of mayonnaise dressing and a little finely chopped tarragon.

How to Broil Shad Roe.

To broil it wash and dry the roe with care not to break the skin. Place it on a well greased broiler and rub it with butter once or twice during the time of broiling. Cook to a nice brown; place it on the planked shad or a separate dish and serve with a butter sauce.

How to Make Chocolate Filling. Add half a cupful of water or milk to two cupfuls of brown sugar, butter the size of an egg and half a cake of chocolate grated. Boil until thick enough to spread between the cake layers. Chopped nuts and raisins may be used in this filling.

How to Yellow White Lace.

White lace may be changed to a creamy hue if powdered saffron is dissolved in water into which the lace is dipped. More or less of the saffron should be used, according as the lace is to be cream colored or ecru.

Rarefied Humor of the Rockies.

High up on the Laramie range there is a little station called Sherman—a mere watering place for trains on the Union Pacific railway. Near by it is a gigantic pyramid of stone 60 feet high and 60 feet square at the base, which was set up by the railway as a monument to Oakes Ames and Oliver Ames.

In the latter eighties there arrived at Sherman a shabby person of melancholy aspect, who put up a "shack"—western for shanty—not far from the monument. Ostensibly, he was prospecting, and he continued to prospect for three years without accomplishing any results, so far as could be observed. At the end of that period the management of the Union Pacific received from him a communication demanding the immediate removal of the monument from the premises, which he claimed as his under the homestead law.

The matter was regarded in a humorous light at first, but subsequent proceedings developed the fact that the squatter had what lawyers call a "case."

The stranger, it seems, had located on a section of land which did not belong to the Union Pacific—the same section on which the monument had, by an inadvertence, been placed. He knew very well what he was about, and the upshot of the affair was that the railway had to pay $5,000 for the squatter's tract in order to make its title good.

The monument, by the way, is distant only about 100 yards from the station, and it is a favorite trick of experienced persons to induce green travelers to attempt a run to the pyramid and back during the two minutes of the train's wait. In nine cases out of ten they fall on the way back, bleeding at the nose, the air being so rarefied at that elevation of 8,300 feet as to forbid such exercise.—Saturday Evening Post.

Making It Rather Personal.

This is credited as one of General Lew Wallace's Turkish jokes: There lived in Stamboul, Turkey, a well-to-do Turk named Ismail Ismail Hassam. He was endowed with oriental wit that stood him well in hand when he was in a tight place. A neighbor called on Ismail one day and wanted to borrow his donkey to use an hour. Ismail made a low salaam and said:

"Neighbor, I am sorry, but my boy started on the donkey an hour ago to Scutari. By now he is gayly trotting over the hills far from the sacred precincts of Stamboul."

Just as Ismail finished his speech a donkey's loud bray was heard in the stable, which was under the same roof as Ismail's house, but in the rear. The neighbor said:

"Ah, I hear your donkey bray." Ismail protested that his neighbor's ears were deceived and that the noise was not a donkey's bray. Then the donkey, which was supposed to be jogging along toward Scutari, brayed twice loudly. It was too much, and the neighbor cried:

"Oh, that is your donkey, Ismail. Allah help me. I can now borrow him!"

Then Ismail said:

"Which do you believe is lying, the donkey or me?"

The neighbor had to give Ismail the benefit of the doubt and went away.

A Literal Construction.

In a school for colored children there was a little boy who would persist in saying "have went" says a contributor to The Christian Endeavor World. The teacher kept him in one night and said:

"Now while I am out of the room you may write 'have gone' 50 times." When the teacher came back, he looked at the boy's paper and there was "have gone 50 times." On the other side was written, "I have went home."

The Kind You Have Always Bought

In the development of the heifer to be a profitable dairy cow a great deal depends on the sort of man that handles her from calfhood to her second milking year. She must start with good dairy ancestry. That is the foundation, but not the superstructure. We have reason to believe that a large proportion of poor cows could have been made good ones if they had fallen into the hands of men who knew how to develop them rightly. Here are the ways: (1) Prevent the growth of fat and the development of beefy tendencies; (2) use constant gentleness and frequently handle the udder; (3) breed at 15 months so as to start the development of the maternal functions while the body is easily molded; (4) feed liberally of milk producing food so as to develop the growth of the udder all that is possible.—Address by W. D. Hoard.

Feeding Grain With Sowing Crops.

In considering the subject of feeding green forage crops to cows, J. B. Lindsay of the Massachusetts experiment station says that some dry feed should be given in addition. From five to ten pounds hay per day, and two to five quarts grain, in connection with 50 to 60 pounds green forage, will give the best results in milk production. If more clover than this is fed, it will have a tendency to cause bloating, while excessive feeding of millet acts injuriously on the kidneys. Suitable grain rations are made up as follows:

No. 1, three to four quarts gluten feed daily; No. 2, 100 pounds gluten meal, 200 pounds fine-middlings, 125 pounds wheat bran; No. 3, 150 pounds gluten feed, 175 pounds wheat bran; No. 4, 100 pounds fine middlings, 150 pounds dried brewers' grains or malt sprouts. Of these, use four to five quarts daily, except with clover, when, one-third less will answer.

Skim Milk Calves.

At the Nebraska experiment station they took calves from three cows, fresh May 15, June 5 and July 8, 1899, and brought them up on skim milk or separator milk, making butter from the cream. In 28 weeks they made nearly 492½ pounds of butter. Three other calves, dropped May 22, May 26 and June 16, were allowed to run with the dams. On July 14, 1900, the three having the whole milk weighed an average of 798 pounds and the three on skim milk 792 pounds. All were fed alike after weaning, but with whole milk valued at $1 per hundredweight and skim milk at 15 cents per hundredweight it had cost $50.27 more to raise those on the whole milk than it did those on skim milk, or $16.76 each, not reckoning anything for the extra cost of labor in the hand feeding and butter making. The cost of growing a calf to 6 months old on skim milk was estimated at about $9 for food, but by their weight as yearlings it will be seen that they were liberally fed.

The dairy barn on the Watson ranch five miles west of Kearney, Neb., has a number of conveniences, says Prairie Farmer. This ranch comprises 8,000 acres, some 5,000 acres of valley land and about 3,000 acres of rolling foothills and table lands. Something more than 2,000 acres are at this time in alfalfa. This yields such an amount of valuable forage that the ranch seems well suited to dairying. Mr. H. D. Watson, the proprietor, availed himself of the natural advantages of a hillside sloping to the valley, to erect at a comparatively moderate expense a very large bank barn, so constructed as to enable the work of handling forage and live stock to be done by more convenient methods than usually seen in plants of this character. The barn is 96 feet in width, 256 feet in length, which in this case we might call depth, as it reaches back into the side hill, and the main portion of the barn is 66 feet in height. Back of this in a hill is a silo 32 feet deep, 62 feet long, with an average width of 30 feet, constructed to contain 1,250 tons of silage. Above and to the south of this is a supply tank 67 feet long, 20 feet wide, 13 feet deep. This tank is supplied by three tubular wells 106 feet deep from which water is pumped by three strong windmills.

This tank, being located on the highest point, supplies water for watering the stock and for flushing gutters behind the lines of cows and flushing the sewers. Liquid manure is conducted by a sewer down to the level of the valley, where it is received in an immense tank and can be by gravity conducted over contiguous lands or by water carts to the crops needing it.

The stable is constructed with a view to accommodating 850 head of cows, each cow having her own box stall in which she can stand or lie at ease without being tied. The stall room is 12 feet in height, giving the cows better than usual ventilation. Windows 480 feet long are on the east, south and west sides of these cow stalls. All these windows are hung on hinges arranged to be opened by turning levers from two inches to their full capacity, thus securing circulation of cross currents of air. The windows will be screened, keeping out flies. There are calf rooms and available box stalls for other purposes, all contrived in such a manner as to enable the smallest possible amount of labor to give the most efficient care.
